Social Development:

Collaborative, long-term social determinant approaches in addressing complex social and community issues. This could include programs that address community health, graduation rates, and youth employment opportunities.

Prevention:

Addressing and eliminating locally identified priority risk. This could include the establishment of safe and inclusive programming spaces that increases community engagement and belonging for our diverse community members.

Intervention:

Mitigating and intervening in elevated situations of threat and risk. This includes situation and hub tables, including the Violent Threat Risk Assessment Protocol, which is a multi-sectoral collaborative approach to reducing risk and violence.

Incident Response:

Immediate response to critical incidents. This is the traditional response to crime and safety, such as police, fire, and other emergency services.
